

D&D Player Questionnaire

Player Name:

1. Why do you play D&D?

2. Are you looking for your character to be a classic hero, or a classic anti-hero?

3. Do you see yourself playing a character with clearly defined moral boundaries?

4. How do you see the role of alignment in the game?

5. What interests you more, immersive storytelling, or casual dungeon crawling, and why?

6. How much of your personality do you see yourself bringing to your character?

7. Would you prefer a heavy handed DM, or one who's just narrating the story and avoids interfering too much in character actions?

Select those that apply:

- I enjoy player vs. player style play
- I expect a lot of combat per session
- I'd like my PC to be a world figure
- I have a family, my cell phone stays on
- DM's should not interfere in PC issues
- My schedule is fairly rigid so I need to keep game dates once they're locked in
- Don't expect/ask me to speak in character
- NPC's are there to be killed, be careful!
- I have certain food allergies:
- I like casual play, don't bother over preparing
- I won't pay for a DDI subscription
- I'd keep religion out of the game if possible

- I'm not into sharing books, now you know
- I like DM vs. PC games
- Keep it at the table, don't discuss game over emails
- I have pet allergies (cat, dogs)
- I'd like a "zero to hero" type scenario to start
- I'd prefer it if significant others who weren't playing stayed out of the table
